Understanding your insurance coverage

Insurance benefits for diagnostic evaluations and various therapies vary by insurance plan. We encourage you to contact your insurance plan to determine your benefits and find out if you need a pre-authorization from your insurance to receive services. Some services, including diagnostic evaluations for ASD, may be billed as a mental health benefit rather than a medical benefit. Some insurance companies cover mental health services the same as medical services. Others cover these services using a special mental health insurance company. The number of mental health visits covered by your insurance may be different than the number of medical visits covered. It can be helpful to have the procedure codes when you call your insurance company to get accurate information on your coverage.

The following questions may be helpful to ask:

- Do I have mental health insurance benefits?
- Is Psychological/Neuropsychological testing covered by my plan?
- What is my deductible, and has it been met?
- Is there a limit to how many therapy sessions and/or testing hours per year that insurance will cover?
- Are there any diagnoses and/or age exclusions?
- Does my insurance require pre-authorization for therapy/testing? If yes, what happens if visits are not authorized?
- Can my child see any provider, or do I have to choose from a list? Does our plan limit services to in-network providers?

What if my child is covered under more than one insurance plan? Insurance regulations determine which coverage you need to use first. This is called primary insurance. If your primary insurance does not cover care because your provider is not in-network, then the second insurance will not cover care either. This is because you are expected to get care from a provider who is in-network with your primary coverage.

What if my child has Medicaid? (Washington Apple Health)

Washington Apple Health will not cover care denied by the primary insurance. If your child is covered by Washington Apple Health, they must see a provider contracted with the Regional Support Network in their county. (For Benton-Franklin County, contact the Greater Columbia Behavioral Health Network at 800-795-9296 for help locating a provider in our area.) Facilities outside the area will not accept you as a patient if they are not contracted with Medicaid to provide services for your county. Providers contracted with Medicaid cannot accept payment from a family whose child is covered by Medicaid.
